Reading, wRiting, aRithmetic

We are working with cause and effect and next will be comparing and contrasting. On the 100th day of school, we wrote paragraphs about how we would spend $100. The 6th and 7th graders have shared their Shurley English with us, and we will visit the 8th graders next week to help us as we continue to learn the method. We have discussed percents in math, have continued with multiplication and division, and have spent some time working on showing our work as we continue to prepare for state assessments. Instead of a spelling test last week, we had ten dictation sentences, and will probably have one or two sentences included on our spelling tests in the weeks to come. We continue to discuss sound in science. We have covered one chapter on the southeast region of the U.S. and the states and capitals of all twelve states that we are studying. We continue have quizzes on the states and capitals of the northeast region, and will begin testing the southeast region after we finish a second chapter about these states. Keep practicing!
